“ To Randy's family, I am deeply sorry for your loss. I was lucky enough, like many people, to meet your son on the internet. Since I live in Tuscola county, which is only an hour and a half away from St. Clair Shores we decided to meet up a few times and I'm glad I did. Randy was one of the most intelligent and kind people I ever met.

I miss him every day, but he's not gone. People always ask me to tell stories about Randy, or "Laundry" as they knew him. I always enjoy telling them even though my laughter behind the computer screen always turns to tears in the end.

Randy was the first person I ever knew even close to well that passed away. I was devastated, and wanted to erase it all, but now I am glad that I knew such a great person.

My heart goes out for Randy's parents, grandparents, and step parents. I only met him face to face a handful of times and he has effected me greatly.##imported-begin##John "Valuum" Kuhnle##imported-end##

“ I believe in God but have to admit that I have yet to even make a dent when it comes to reading the bible since about the eight years ago I decided I wanted to explore deeper into what I believe. I have been being lazy, relying on TV and radio bible teachers to get my information and to help me with my "Doubting Thomas" moments. I also get daily scriptures sent to my cell phone, I got this one today (which I am pretty sure I have never read this before): Mark 12:25 When the dead rise, they will neither marry nor be given in marriage; they will be like ANGELS IN HEAVEN - Jesus. Of course, I know that this is what happens when we die and we believe, that we go to heaven. It just meant more to me reading it today. While reading this does not take away the pain that you are no longer here with us on Earth, the hurt that you had so much life ahead of you, it doesn't take away the pain of not being able to see who you could have become but I hope it was meant to bring some comfort that you are an ANGEL IN HEAVEN.##imported-begin##Laura Gibilisco##imported-end##

“ You were one of the best people I have ever talked to about various subjects and I am truly pained to have found out that that your life was taken way too soon. I can only hope that there is a hereafter where you have found the peace that you didn't have before. It truly pains me that you are gone from mine and everyone else's life, for now. You will be greatly missed by everyone your life's light has ever touched in your (too short of) life.

Rest In Peace, my friend.##imported-begin##Aaron

“ My Dear Randy, my beautiful son, my first born,

You always were and always will be the best thing that has ever happened to me. I finally managed to fall asleep last night. only to awake a few hours later as all the previous nights since you left, asking "why", "why Randy", "why now" But I know I can't ask why. All I can do is just pray that I feel your presence each and everyday for the rest of my life. I pray that you are up in heaven doing all the things you love to do, having conversations with people with your level of intelligence. You and me both know you didn't get that amazingly incredible thinking mind of yours from me. Even though you are not here on Earth with us, we need you Randy. Please, I pray that your beautiful smile will shine down on us each and everyday, your brothers and sisters miss you like crazy. Don't ever leave their hearts and I will forever hold you in mine.

I love you so much it hurts. I pray that I will see you tonight in my dreams, I am still waiting for that hug.

Love, Mom

“ More than ever I regret not making the effort to go visit you and hang out while I lived in Michigan... I know it wasn't possible for you either, but I deeply regret it now. I regret falling out of contact the last few months, the last half a year I guess. I tried my best to always be there when called on, and answer everything I could to the best of my abilities. It's stupid to think that our friendship deteriorated simply because I wasn't getting on IRC enough or AIM. I certainly regret it now.

I hope you are someplace a bit more peaceful now. I know life wasn't easy, but I also think you had no intention of leaving it early... Things seemed to be getting brighter the last time I had heard from you. I wish I had heard more though.

The past few days since I heard (on Friday) I've been going in and out of shock and disbelief. It's been hitting me at random times that this is real, and this is horrible. I wish there was something more to offer other than my own distraught state, but there isn't. I'm sorry. I'm sorry this happened, I'm sorry I wasn't in touch the last few months, I'm sorry I have no help to offer or prayers or pretty platitudes. I hope your family can overcome this and know that you had friends all over, even if they weren't there in Michigan, and that we were all shocked by this.##imported-begin##Julianne##imported-end##

“ Laundry, Randumb, Randy. Whatever you're going by nowadays. We talked a lot on the internet and was pleasantly surprised when you crossed my path on another favorite channel of mine. Even though we never met I still considered us good friends. We had so many plans for what we were gonna do when we were finally gonna hang out and I was so excited when I heard that you might be moving only 3 hours away from me.

I wish it didn't end this way, you were the last person I thought was gonna go in the deep end with that junk.

“ I was lucky enough to get to meet Randy last spring, after talking to him for some time through online communities, mostly about new wave. He helped me get into a lot of really cool bands and always was trying to help me with my personal and emotional issues. When we finally got to hang out in real life he seemed a little overwhelmed by the situation, but I tried my best to make sure he felt welcome.

Unfortunately, after that, our lives diverged in mutually self-destructive ways, and though we spoke briefly time and again, I was too distracted by my own life to give much attention to his. I feel that there's so much more that I could have done for him, and I lament the loss of an interesting and really kindhearted young man.

If there's a heaven, I hope it has Velvet Underground LPs, and a copy of "Lungs" with all the weird inserts... Gonna miss you man.##imported-begin##Axem##imported-end##
