“ When I was a young man, starting as a rigger, Bill was on the first big job I ever worked on, Peerless Cement. I didn't know anything but Bill treated me like a man, even though I was just a kid. He looked out for my safety, taught me to weld and made me laugh everyday, just like he did on every other job we worked on together. As I look back at the role models in my life I would definetly put Bill at the top of my list. I regret that I under estimated his illness and was not able to tell him this in person before he left us. I love Bill and will look for him when I crossover to the otherside, I'm sure he will not hesitate to take me under his wing again.##imported-begin##Jeffrey Conlon##imported-end##

“ My earliest recollection of Uncle Bill was around the age of 4. I wondered who was this guy that was hanging around Grandma's house eating up all the apple pie. When he took me to the state fair and bought me a hat with a huge feather and my name stitched on the front, well, he was in.

46 years later my heart is heavy with loss of not only my uncle but my friend. Some people thought Uncle Bill worked too much and too hard. That may have been...at times. I know that the work ethic I have today I can trace back to core principles instilled in me in my youth by Uncle Bill. I owe a lot of who I am and what I have achieved, in part, because of the man Uncle Bill was.

Sandi, the girls and I are always there if you need us, Lynn.
